

The Medallion

Honor Society

Code of Conduct

Old School House – Maquoketa, IA

Instead of focusing on themselves, MEDALLION members choose to emphasize other individuals. By placing emphasis on others, MEDALLION members seek to achieve success in life, to strengthen their own character, and to serve humanity with a spirit of generosity. To that end, MEDALLION members will strive to achieve the following eight qualities:

Enthusiastic – inspires others to reach their full potential

Appreciative – recognizes the contributions of others

Trustworthy – others can depend on you

Persuasive – convince others to attain higher goals

Patient – preserving a calm demeanor with others

Consistent – serving as an anchor for others

Empowering – supporting the efforts of others

Passionate – responsive to the needs of others

MEDALLION members subscribe to the principle that a lifetime of learning and service will be its own reward. To that end, a member's attitude reflects their character; their character leads to effective leadership; and leadership provides service to others.
